

Fromdistance expanding in the Nordic countries

Press release, for release on March 23rd, 2009

Fromdistance, a leading device management vendor, has opened offices in Oslo, Norway and Helsinki, Finland. The Oslo office is company's regional hub for Scandinavia while the Helsinki office was established to support the broad customer base in Finland.

Mr. Kurt Kristiansen is appointed to head the operations in Scandinavia. Kurt Kristiansen has extensive background in device management; prior to joining Fromdistance at the beginning of March 2009, he was working at Nokia, being responsible for sales of Nokia Business Mobility software in Norway. "I'm excited to join Fromdistance. More and more companies start deploying advanced mobile solutions to save costs and become more efficient. The requirements for mobile device management are therefore increasing. The capabilities of the Fromdistance product really meet these requirements for secure, easy deployment and support of mobile solutions." Kurt Kristiansen states.

The office in Helsinki is headed by Mr. Mikko Zerlik. Mikko Zerlik's background is also at Nokia Business Mobility unit. "Fromdistance has created a strong distributor network and our products are widely used in Finland. The advanced features make it easy for enterprises to select our product for device management", Mikko Zerlik says.

Fromdistance sells its industry-leading device management product, Fromdistance MDM, through its resellers to enterprises and public administration organizations.

For further information on Fromdistance's new offices contact Jouko Vierumäki, CEO of Fromdistance, jouko@fromdistance.com, +372 5292672.

Information on Fromdistance

Fromdistance is an Estonian software company which specializes in challenging mobile applications for business use. The flagship product of Fromdistance is Fromdistance MDM, a comprehensive suite for device management for enterprises.

Fromdistance is owned by its founder, key employees, and Aura Capital. Having headquarters and R&D in Tallinn (Estonia), Fromdistance has offices in Helsinki (Finland), Madrid (Spain), Milan (Italy) and Oslo (Norway).